

Cruse Scotland

Bereavement Support

About Us

"Grief is a normal, natural human experience. You can, however, feel very far from 'normal' as you grieve and might even find yourself asking 'is this normal?'.

This booklet highlights some of the common experiences that many people experience when they are grieving. You may recognise that the intensity of some of these things has changed since you were first bereaved.

This change, however, is not everyone's experience and for some, grief stays very raw, and intrusive, in everyday life. If that is your experience, support from Cruse Scotland can help to make sense of some of that and this booklet will explain how to access that."

-Nicola Reed, Director of Client Services
Cruse Scotland

Who We Are

Cruse Scotland is a charity dedicated to helping people understand, process and navigate their grief.

Our free bereavement services are designed to ensure that anyone needing support receives the right help at the right time, building resilience and improving well-being at a time of great sorrow, stress and loss.

We believe that no one should struggle alone after the death of a loved one, so we are on a mission to reach everyone who needs us.

It doesn't matter how recent or long ago the death occurred, nor the relationship to the deceased. We have a range of services that can offer hope and support as you move forward in your grief journey.

What is Grief?

Freephone Helpline: 0808 802 6161

Opening hours: Weekdays 9am-8pm

Weekends 10am-2pm

GriefChat service: crusescotland.org.uk

Opening hours: Weekdays 9am-9pm

Email: support@crusescotland.org.uk

Everyone experiences bereavement at some point in their life – whether it's the death of a parent, family member, friend or a child.

Grief describes the feelings that we may have when someone close to us dies.

The death of someone close can be a shattering experience and whether the death has been sudden or expected, we can find ourselves confused by the mix, and strength, of emotions.

The early days following death can be a chaotic time as we try to come to terms with the death, and cope with the grief of other family members or friends. Along with this, we may also have to deal with all the practical issues.

There is no right way to grieve. Grief is very personal and even within a family, group of friends or colleagues, people can experience very different feelings and reactions to the same death.

At the same time, there are some experiences that are not uncommon and it can be helpful to know that others have shared these.

What is Happening to Me?

All of the following are normal reactions to grief, it is important to identify problems and seek support where needed.

Self Medicating

It may seem helpful to ease the pain of grief by self medicating with drugs or alcohol. However, this can make us more depressed, and it is easy to become overly dependent on them as an escape. If you are worried about this, speak with your doctor.

Accidents

Because concentration is difficult, it may be that accidents are more likely. It is important to take extra care when driving, as well as simple tasks like making a cup of tea.

Suicidal Thoughts

It is common to question the meaning of our own lives following a death, and thoughts of suicide are not unusual. However, if the thought persists, then speak with your doctor.

Mental Health Concerns

Grief can make us more vulnerable to illnesses. This could be mental illnesses like chronic anxiety and depression. It can also cause a variety of physical symptoms, such as back pain and stomach upsets. If you experience any of these, speak with your doctor.

Trouble Eating

Appetite may be reduced, or it may be just too much effort to make a meal. However, we need nourishment to continue to cope – even if it is just a healthy snack. Some people may “comfort eat” but this can also be unhealthy.

Sleeping

Grief frequently disturbs normal sleeping patterns, and can bring unusual or disturbing dreams, and the lack of sleep can be exhausting. If this persists, then speak with your doctor.

Recognising Feelings

The death of someone close can bring many different feelings and emotions. It is normal to experience some, or all, of the following..

Sadness

- Deep and painful emptiness
- Feelings that cannot be put into words

Helplessness

- Not knowing what's next
- Feeling that we cannot cope

Loneliness

- Missing the person's physical presence
- Feeling that part of us has gone

Relief

- That their suffering is over

Disappointment

- At losing what might have been

Disbelief

- That the death is real

Gratitude

- For the good times together

Guilt

- About things we could or should have done
- About how we feel

Anger

- At what has happened
- At the person

Fear

- Of what lies ahead
- About our own life or death

Regret

- At things said or not said
- At things done

Confusion

- Nothing makes sense
- Difficulty in concentrating

Do I Need Help?

Your pathway to support

"Grief can be a long road with many twists and turns and you may find that you need different support at different times along the way."

"I hope that some of this booklet helps reassure you that, although unpleasant, unwanted and unfamiliar, many of the feelings and behaviours that you are experiencing are quite 'normal'. You may even recognise that life has begun to adjust to a 'changed normal'. Where you have any concerns about your grief, or on days that are particularly difficult, our Helpline and GriefChat services can be helpful places to talk things through and the self help resources on our website may also be useful."

"There is no timeline on grief, but if you are finding that months, or even years, down the line that grief continues to be very raw and intrusive in every day life – then you may want to consider our counselling support which is available for those who have been bereaved more than six months."

-Nicola Reed, Director of Client Services
Cruse Scotland

Please remember if you ever need to talk, immediate support is available: Our Free Bereavement Helpline, GriefChat and online self help materials.

Immediate Support Services:

Free Bereavement Helpline

0808 802 6161. We're here to listen and offer you bereavement support. Open Monday to Friday 9am-8pm and Saturday and Sunday 10am-2pm.

GriefChat

GriefChat is our online webchat service available on weekdays from 9am-9pm. Accessible via our website at 'crusescotland.org.uk'

Appointment Based Services:

One to One Grief Counselling

Provided a minimum of six months after bereavement. This service is offered throughout Scotland, either face-to-face, via telephone or video conferencing.

Support Groups

Occasionally, we host support groups to help you connect with others who are grieving. Visit our website to learn more about upcoming events.

Children and Young People Service

We offer a range of services to help children, whilst equipping their families, or carers, and schools with information and advice. All support is tailored to the needs of you and your child.

Other Resources

These further resources may help you on your grief journey.

Breathing Space (Scotland)

A service for people with low mood or depression.

0800 83 85 87

Weekdays: Monday-Thursday 6pm to 2am

Weekend: Friday 6pm-Monday 6am

www.breathingspace.scot

Samaritans

Need to talk to someone? Access Samaritans 24 hour service online: www.samaritans.org.uk

By phone: 116 123

Mental Health - Need Urgent Help?

Phone 111. This service is available 24/7.

Childline

Free support for children. 24 hour service.

Phone 0800 1111 or use their online chat.

www.childline.org.uk

How Your Support Helps

We believe our vital bereavement support services should be free and accessible to all children, young people and adults who need us. However to make that possible, we need to raise money to be there for those struggling with their grief. There are many ways you can help us, including;

- Remembering Cruse Scotland in your Will. No matter the amount you leave, your legacy will be one of hope. Take advantage of our free Will writing service.
- Take on a challenge event in memory of a loved one. Whether you want to run or walk, get fit or have fun, there is something for everyone and we're here to support you with your fundraising efforts.
- Make a one off or regular donation

Visit crusescotland.org.uk/support-us to offer hope to others.

Freephone Helpline: 0808 802 6161

Opening hours: Weekdays 9am-8pm
Weekends 10am-2pm

GriefChat service: crusescotland.org.uk

Opening hours: Weekdays 9am-9pm

Email: support@crusescotland.org.uk

Cruse
Scotland
Bereavement Support

